Andrea Franchetti founded his estate in the early 1990s, choosing a corner of Tuscany – Val d'Orcia – which nobody had previously considered as a winemaking environment. Andrea's rigorous and even extreme decisions have given this south-eastern part of the province of Siena one of the most quality-oriented wineries in the whole of Tuscany. Trinoro wines have a very intense, personal style, characterized by harvesting almost at the point of overripeness and ageing exclusively in small oak casks.
