

Italy harvest 2020

Despite a chaotic year for most of us, 2020 is looking like a successful vintage for many Italian producers...

James Button
October 13, 2020

It's that time of year when all the work in the vineyards through the summer reaches fruition. The Italian 2020 harvest is underway in many regions, with early ripening varieties already in the winery and the later ripening varieties nearly ready to be picked.

(...)

Sicily

In Sicily, Passopisciaro is still waiting to pick its Nerello Mascalese, which is located at altitude on Mount Etna. 'If weather conditions continue this way, we'll start picking towards the end of October,' explains Vincenzo Lo Mauro, the estate's director.