

The Best Wines to Drink This Spring (and What to Serve Them With)

Put away your winter coats (and heavy winter wines). This spring, give your at-home wine list a spring cleaning and take your pick of this fresh crop of wines that are just right for the season.

With spring right around the corner, it's finally time to grab a bottle and head outdoors. These wines are some of our favorites to sip in spring, and range from crisp and light to fuller-bodied. We hope you'll discover new favorites to sip solo or to pair with anything from freshly grilled ribeye to vibrant salads that make the most of springtime produce.

Light-Bodied Reds

These versatile, playful reds play just as nicely with bucatini with mushroom ragu and greens as they do with grilled chicken wings with jaew.

2019 Birichino Bechthold Vineyard Cinsault, Lodi, California

2019 Clos du Tue-Boeuf Pineau d'Aunis, Loire Valley, France

2018 Noëlla Morantin Mon Cher Gamay, Loire Valley, France

2019 Jean-Paul Thévenet Morgon, Beaujolais, France

2018 Fratelli Alessandria Prinsiòt Langhe Nebbiolo, Piedmont, Italy

Medium-Bodied Reds

Medium-bodied reds are arguably the ultimate shape shifter, effortlessly sidling up beside tuna croquettes, burgers, or even just a post-work drink. There's something for everyone here.
